CHINA AND THE UNITED STATES CLOSELY TIED

That China and the United States are closely bound together in the interests of trade and education was the underlying theme of a strong talk made to the A. B. Club today by Fletcher S. Brockman, national secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for China. That mutual benefit will result from closer association and affiliation was the message brought from across the Pacific to the thinking men of Honolulu.

"The greatest undiscovered continent of trade today is the Chinese nation," said Brockman. "China stands absolutely open with its foreign commerce to American brains and American money. Anyone who plays fair can get the greatest concessions, for the country is seeking development from the outside. There are railroads to be built that European nations were crazy to build a few months ago, but have been indefinitely postponed on account of the European war. Also, in the educational trust of China is in the United States. After careful study they have adopted our school system and institutions of learning are springing up as if by magic."

Speaking of the Y. M. C. A. in China, Brockman said that in spite of some of the over-zealous secretaries sent out, the institution has spread all over China. The leadership is entirely in the hands of the Chinese, and the imported talent acts only in the capacity of a foreign advisory committee.

Kenneth Crost, representing the San Diego exposition, urged that Honolulu be adequately represented there. He said that the space allotted to the territory would be divided equally between modern and ancient Hawaii.

A. Kennedy, a prominent Indianan, was called on to tell something about good road laws that would really work. He had a leading part in framing such a law for the Hoosier state, and his talk was much to the point.

Harry L. Strange of the Honolulu A. B. Club told of a recent trip to the coast. He said that on investigation he found that the Honolulu A. B. Club was one of the best in the whole west; that Hawaii had the goods, and that it was merely a matter of letting other people know it.

GARRISON URGES ARIZONA NOT TO USE MILITIAMEN

Maintains That Regulars Can Handle Situation at Naco, on the Border

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 14.—Secretary of War Garrison has advised Governor Hunt of Arizona against sending state militia to the border on account of the deaths of Americans caused by stray bullets from Naco, Mexico, during recent fighting. Garrison says that the sending of militia will greatly complicate the situation. He maintains that the regulars are doing all that is needed.

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15.—If Governor Hunt insists on sending national guardsmen to the Mexican frontier, the president will probably exercise his constitutional prerogative of calling the guardsmen into the federal service under regular army officers.

CARRANZA GETS TROOPS OUT TO CHECK STRIKE

Labor Union Movement in Mexico City Met With Guns and Bayonets

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Oct. 14.—General Carranza has seized the street car lines of the capital at the point of the bayonet, a big force of soldiers being called out to put the lines under military control. The employees of the company went on strike and endeavored to force all chauffeurs, teamsters and drivers to join them. They demand double pay, an eight-hour day and the recognition of their union.

The principal stockholders in the street railway company are English, French and Belgian. There are some American stockholders also. With its allied light and power company the street car company controls all the light, power, heat and transportation in a district of 30 miles radius around the capital.

The investment in the company is at least $100,000,000. The management has made a vigorous protest against Gen. Carranza's action.

GRAND JURY IS PROBING 'BLIND PIG' INCIDENT

Sam Kalalulu Case Believed to Be on Grill Before Federal Tribunal

The taking of testimony in the several cases which have been brought to its attention since the opening of the October term, was begun in earnest this morning by the federal grand jury. From the witnesses who were called before noon, it seemed likely that the greater part of the morning was given over to an investigation of the case of Sam Kalalulu, who recently was arrested by the territorial authorities at the instance of Liquor License Inspector W. P. Fennell on a charge of having conducted a "blind pig."

According to Inspector Fennell, at whose instance Kalalulu also was arrested by the territorial authorities on a charge of the illicit selling of liquor, the defendant whose case it is believed is being investigated by the grand jury, did a rushing business at his "blind pig" in Kaula lane prior to the time he was apprehended. Kalalulu is a huckster, and it is said that he conducted his business by picking up soldiers and the employees of certain steamers making their port from off the street, driving them to his home, and there selling them liquor. Mrs. Kalalulu was arrested May 31, following an investigation by Inspector Fennell, but later had her case dropped. Her husband was arrested shortly after by the territorial authorities, and then by the federal authorities.

Inspector Fennell further says that Kalalulu kept a number of young girls at his house, and acted as procurer for them at the same time he was securing customers to patronize his "blind pig."

Among the witnesses called before the grand jury this morning were Inspector Fennell, Collector of Internal Revenue Charles A. Cottrill, Louis Kane, two soldiers from the 2nd Infantry and one of Fennell's informers. It is said that there are still 10 persons, five men and five women, to be called to give testimony in the Kalalulu case.

The grand jury this morning changed its place of meeting from the federal court room on the third floor of the government building to the United States commissioner's room on the second floor.

GAS MEN MAY MEET HERE DURING 1916

Hawaii loomed up large at the national convention of gas men held at Long Beach, Cal., thanks to the continuous promotion of H. L. Strange of the Honolulu Gas Company.

Mr. Strange comes home believing it entirely feasible to secure the convention for Honolulu in 1916. San Francisco will of course get it next year.

The Long Beach Telegram, referring to the closing banquet at which Mr. Strange was one of the four speakers of the evening, says: "H. L. Strange, manager of the Honolulu Gas Company, was introduced by the toast-master as a star of first magnitude and gave a brilliant talk in description of his home town and invited the convention to meet in Honolulu in 1916 or '17. He promised that he would bring to the international convention next year a troupe of Hawaiian singers and dancers."

GRAND JURY INDICTS THREE IN THE WAIKIKI INN AFFAIR— SCULLY, FISCHER AND CHILTON

The territorial grand jury returned an indictment this afternoon against John T. Scully, Willmot R. Chilton and John H. Fischer, charging them with first degree conspiracy.

The indictment alleges that on June 29, 1914, the three "unlawfully, maliciously and fraudulently combined and mutually undertook and concerted together to commit an act against the laws of the territory of Hawaii, to wit, to suppress legal evidence, and the said John T. Scully, Willmot R. Chilton and John H. Fischer, then and there, wilfully intending to prevent and obstruct the course of justice did give to the said John H. Fischer the sum of $20, to evade the giving of his testimony before the board of liquor license commissioners of the city and county of Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii, in the matter of the application of the Waikiki Inn, for a renewal of its second-class liquor license."

The indictment further sets forth that the renewal of the license was then pending and that Fischer was a witness to be heard, his testimony being material, as Scully, Chilton and Fischer knew, and that they did thereby commit the crime of conspiracy in the first degree.

The three counts against them all deal with the alleged conspiracy in that all three conspired to keep Fischer's testimony from being placed before the liquor license commission.

Motorcycle Officer Chilton and John T. Scully, the latter the former manager of Waikiki Inn, both were in the corridor of the Judiciary building when the grand jury made its partial report, returning the one indictment, and they were at once summoned before the court. Fischer was sent for and was brought into court less than five minutes later.

Scully and Chilton apparently had good reason to suspect that the indictment awaited them, for when they came into court each was accompanied by his personal and special counsel, Attorney E. C. Peters appearing with Scully and Judge A. S. Humphreys with Chilton. On motion of Deputy County Attorney A. M. Brown bond for each defendant was fixed at $500, which Chilton and Scully immediately produced, all properly signed and ready for presentation to the court. Ah Leong appears as Scully's bondman. Judge Humphreys had the paper with Ah Leong's signature, and when the size of the bond was announced he at once filed in the amount.

Fischer stated that he had no legal counsel as yet, but that he could obtain a bondman in an hour or two, and was given until 5 o'clock this evening to furnish bond.

All three will be arraigned at 9 o'clock next Saturday morning, the date and hour being agreed upon by the prosecution and counsel for defendants. The case came up many weeks ago when Fischer failed to appear at a meeting of the liquor license commissioners when he was supposed to give evidence concerning alleged law violation at Waikiki Inn. After some investigation the grand jury apparently dropped the matter, but, after public attention was drawn to the failure to clear up the mysterious disappearance of Fischer, Circuit Judge Ashford instructed the grand jury to go into the story and get at the facts.

PERSONAL ROW IS ALLOWED TO BLOCK THE BILL

Federal Building Held Up Because One Congressman Thought Another Lied

By C. S. ALBERT

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 24.—The arrangement for a site and the adjustment of funds with which to erect a new federal building in Honolulu seems destined to indefinite delay. Present indications are that no further progress toward straightening out the tangle will be made during the present session of Congress.

When the federal building bill came up in the House for action, it being on the unanimous consent calendar, emphatic objection was made by Representative Donovan of Connecticut. Representative Burnett, in charge of the measure, sought to secure a waiving of the objection, but Mr. Donovan was obdurate and the bill failed because of his stubbornness.

After the matter was over Mr. Burnett walked down the aisle and inquired for the reasons which inspired the Connecticut man to defeat the bill. He was informed that it was purely a personal affair; that Mr. Burnett had made false statements regarding Mr. Donovan and these were resented. No Fight—Just Repartees.

The upshot of the wrangle was that Mr. Burnett informed Mr. Donovan that he was going the lying himself. But there was no fight.

The passage of the federal building bill was prevented solely on the grounds of personal spite and dislike following some real or imaginary grievance against Judge Burnett by Mr. Donovan. The merits of the case did not enter into the controversy.

Mr. Burnett explained openly to Mr. Donovan that the passage of the measure would result in a saving to the government of $150,000, but that declaration had no effect on the member from Connecticut.

Friends of the proposition will take steps for returning the bill to the unanimous consent calendar, but it loses its place of advantage. It must take rank at the foot of the calendar.

This setback is regarded as precluding the possibility of action during the present session of Congress.

ANOTHER ROUND ON THE PRIMARY LAW CALLED FOR

Attorney Breckon's Petitions Supreme Court for Rehearing in Cooke Case

Holding the supreme court has erred in its conclusions regarding the amendments to the Organic Act relating to the election laws of Hawaii, Attorney R. W. Breckon, representing Clarence H. Cooke, this morning filed a petition in supreme court asking a rehearing of the reserved questions involved in Cooke's mandamus suit against the territorial secretary and county clerk. The suit, it will be remembered, was brought as a test case, to determine whether Cooke and three other Republican legislative candidates in the fourth district were elected at the recent primary.

The portion of the supreme court's opinion, given yesterday, to which Breckon takes exception, is as follows:

"The first section of the Organic Act provides that the phrase 'the laws of Hawaii' as used in this act without qualifying words, shall mean the constitution and laws of the Republic of Hawaii in force on the 13th day of August, 1898, at the time of the transfer of the sovereignty of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States of America. We think 'the election laws' of Hawaii referred to in the amendment to section 85 were none other than such as were included in the general definition of section 1."

Breckon now contends, however, that this amendment, made in 1908, expressly includes within "the election laws of Hawaii" those providing for an election of a delegate to Congress, which were not a part of the Hawaiian election laws of 1898, and that therefore "the election laws of Hawaii" referred to in the 1908 amendment must have included those for delegate and members of the legislature as well as those for county officers.

Rehearing Not Settled.
The petition for a rehearing was filed with Chief Justice A. G. Robertson. Whether the petitioner will be granted a rehearing is not yet announced. There need be no rehearing unless a member of the tribunal decides Breckon's contention has substance.
